Always green

At Trex, decking is comprised of 95% recycled materials—namely, recycled wood, sawdust and plastic film. This earth-friendly formula, coupled with groundbreaking green processes, makes it hard to find a company more actively aware of its impact on the environment. LEARN MORE ABOUT OUR EARTH-FRIENDLY PROCESSES at www.trex.com/why-trex/eco-friendly-decking

We make Trex® eco-friendly composite decks from an innovative blend of 95% recycled wood and plastic film—that's almost the whole thing. On top of that, our company uses some of the most earth-friendly manufacturing processes in the country, reclaiming factory waste and eliminating the use of harmful chemicals. Trex offers consumers a truly environmentally responsible choice. Being green is in our DNA. We've been this way for more than 20 years, well before green was a buzzword. Because in the end, all of us want to look out on our decks and know that we've done our part.

Recycled wood

Locally sourced reclaimed wood that would otherwise end up in a landfill finds its way into Trex high-performance composite decks. By using reclaimed sawdust, we never have to cut down a tree to make our products. Ever!

Recycled plastic film

The recycled wood in our decks is combined with recycled plastic film from a variety of sources ranging from the overwrap on paper towels to dry cleaner bags, sandwich bags, newspaper sleeves, and grocery and shopping bags. Here's an interesting fact: the average 150 square metre composite Trex deck contains 140,000 recycled plastic bags! That makes us one of the largest plastic bag recyclers in the U.S.

Why are TREX outdoor living products better than wood?

When it comes to Trex vs. wood, there's more to the story than the upfront price. While wood may be cheaper on day one, it could end up costing you far more by day 365 (and well beyond). Trex means quality, beauty and minimal maintenance, saving you time, money and everything that comes with a call to the handyman. Plus, the high-performance composite shell of Trex decking resists rotting, staining and cracking.

How do I clean my TREX deck?

Trex decking is designed for a low-maintenance experience. A simple soap-and-water clean is all it takes.

How do I install my TREX product?
