The WaterMark certification is the main plumbing product quality scheme in Australasia.

Whilst it is mandatory in Australia, in New Zealand this is a voluntary process, and we are proud to say that we are voluntarily in this scheme and strive to create WaterMark approved products.

Because of this, many of our products meet the WaterMark standard, and our processes and labels refer to the AS/NZS 3718 standard which includes the AS/NZS 4020 standard for the “Testing of products for use in contact with drinking water”.

What this means is that products that meet these standards must not release certain metals (such as lead) beyond minute quantities, and that the limits for lead content align with the requirements as detailed in the Drinking-Water Standards for New Zealand 2005 (Revised 2008) publication by the Ministry of Health.

Only a handful of tapware companies operating in New Zealand can use the WaterMark, so when you buy a Voda product that has this symbol you will know you are buying the healthiest tapware available.

To be sure that you are choosing tapware that meets these requirements, look for products in this catalogue with a  icon.
