Why Cedar?

About western red cedar

The western red variety is the most common type of cedar. It's relatively soft (1 on a scale of 1 to 4), comparatively light (as timbers go), has a straight grain, and has a slightly aromatic smell.

Western red cedar, as its name implies, has a reddish colour and is found predominantly in the Pacific Northwest of North America (the U.S. state of Washington and British Columbia, the south-western province of Canada).

It's a very durable timber

Cedar contains natural preservatives that make it resistant to insect damage, decay, and harsh weather conditions. Canadian western red cedar also has outstanding dimensional stability – meaning it resists warping and shrinkage – which is essential for a timber product to maintain its shape during its life, especially when used outdoors.

It's easy to work with

It's lightweight but strong, has a fine, straight grain and uniform texture, and is resistant to splitting.

It has great thermal insulation qualities

Western red cedar is an excellent thermal insulator, outperforming brick, concrete and steel. By resisting the extremes of temperature, it keeps the garden or hobby enthusiast warm in winter and cool in summer. It also has great acoustic insulation qualities.

It's termite resistant

Termites stay away from cedar because the naturally-occurring oils are toxic to them. Some other insects are repelled by the natural aroma of cedar.

It's attractive

The colour and the grain ensure that anything built with western red cedar will be aesthetically pleasing. Most people prefer the natural look of wood to anything artificial, and western red cedar tends to complement other materials that are used alongside it, as well as fitting in aesthetically in a garden setting.

It's aromatic

The natural fragrance of cedar is very pleasant and this is enhanced by the fact that it doesn't need to be treated with any preservative chemicals or waterproofing agents making time spent in your STILLA product enjoyable.

It's sustainable

Western red cedar is the ultimate sustainable timber, producing fewer greenhouse gases, generating less water and air pollution, and needing less energy to produce than alternatives.

KETER[®]

Our Commitment to Sustainability

Sustainability isn't a new initiative for us, it's part of our philosophy and who we are.

From the technologies we develop to the design process itself, every product we make is functional and made to last a lifetime. Our mission is to minimize the use of virgin resources and eliminate waste at each stage of the value chain.

We've designed all our products to be 100% recyclable and are on an ambitious trajectory to increase the use of recycled content in our products from 40% in 2020 to 55% in 2025. Because the earth is our home and our workplace. We like it and the people who live here.

Better Products

We deliver innovative and durable lifestyle solutions that transform your outdoor space.

Our products are designed to help people live more conveniently and comfortably at affordable prices. All of our products are 100% recyclable and designed to last a lifetime, we don't believe in single-use products.

Advancing a circular economy through the innovative use of recycled content in our products, some of which are made of up to 100% recycled materials, is of the utmost importance to us. Throughout 2021, we used over 160,000 tons of recycled material - that's 5 times the Statue of Liberty's weight!

Better Planet

Sustainability has been a part of our company culture since its inception. With strategic targets to reduce 25% of greenhouse gas emissions by 2025, we continuously strive to achieve greater sustainability goals.

We reduce our carbon footprint through operational efficiencies and environmentally positive actions throughout our supply chain. Proactively contributing towards sustainable living through a range of climate resilience measures, prudent water management, and aggressive waste elimination.

Better Business

Our success as a company depends on the innate understanding that diversity, equity, and inclusion lead to greater creativity, greater innovation, and ultimately greater sustainability achievements.
